DEPOSITION BOOK, 1795-1814 BY HARRY G. ENOCH PDF

The Deposition Book at the Clark County Courthouse contains the testimony of pioneers recorded in land actions between 1795 and 1814. The present work provides annotated transcriptions of the book's 222 depositions, plus explanatory material that includes a description and location of 112 tracts of land, 235 biographical sketches of the individuals involved and 45 place name descriptions. A brief explanation of Kentucky's land grant system is also included, as well as a full name index. The depositions contain a wealth of historical material along with a treasure-trove of genealogically important data. Particularly noteworthy are six depositions by Daniel Boone. We can examine Boone's own account of the naming of Lulbegrud Creek and the rescue of the Boone-Calloway girls after their capture by a band of Shawnees. The deponents include well-known figures in early Kentucky-Boone, George Rogers Clark, Michael Stoner, John "Wildcat" McKinney-and Clark County's earliest settlers.

Great History Book

By C. Jean Purvis

This book is well organized, the depositions are organized and has historical significance for families whose ancestors settled in Clark County.. I was fascinated with the two tables: Property Processioned 1795-1814 and Pioneers in Clark County Prior to Statehood. It is not only informative but entertaining.
