Essential Reading in our Multi-Cultural World

By Kathy LYnn

Through the use of real stories, this book offers a glimpse into the world of the refugee families in our neighbourhoods. It's important reading for all teachers in order to gain an understanding of the children that will likely show up in their classroom at some point.

Everyone who has a child in school can also benefit so that they can help their kids befriend these kids and offer them the support and connection they need.

We can more easily welcome newcomers when we have a sense of what they are going through.

The book is also about an exceptional school and it's staff.
