Barney Childs (1926-2000) was a professor at the University of Redlands from 1971 until his death, teaching music at the School of Music and poetry at the Johnston Center.

In 1993 he completed the text of his Poetry 1 instructional textbook, but it has remained unpublished until this time. It can now be purchased, in both print and e-book editions from Amazon. All profits from the sale of the book will benefit the Johnston Center.

The Poetry 1 Book also includes appreciations of Barney and his work by former colleagues and students, and all of Barney's own poetry and Johnston Commencement addresses.

Wait for a proper version

Oh, dear. This is a nightmare. The book, circulated in photocopy in Barney Childs' poetry classes, was what he hoped would be published as a course in study leading to the profession of poetry. I word processed this final version for Barney Childs in the early 1990s, which he used in his last years of teaching. Childs was very specific about indentations of lines and stanzas. The current version strips all those formats, credited my own short dedication as if written by Barney. The first version added poems that are credited to Childs, but were actually written by a former student.

Barney Childs wrote this book with the intention of publication by an academic press for use in university courses. However, his time — and his health — ran out. What was a working textbook has thus been turned into a nostalgia exercise and reunion for former students. The worst thing is that a number of Childs' former colleagues took part in this, without knowing how its lack of academic rigor would have irritated Barney, rather than pleased him. A very, very poor treatment of Barney's memory.
